Triple Aim Outcome Measures

The Triple Aim framework for value-based healthcare (VBHC) includes goals for population health, patient experience, and cost of care. However, it is challenging to achieve these goals simultaneously. Many articles found that achieving the objectives requires tradeoffs, and that it is unrealistic to expect that all three goals will be attained without increasing costs or decreasing quality.

Despite the challenges, nurs fpx 4060 assessment 3 disaster recovery plan jj were significant improvements in access, continuity rates, and cost reduction, such as decreased hospitalizations and emergency department visits and less use of subspecialty referrals and high-end radiology. Practices that were PCMH-recognized and had staff trained in patient-centered communication were more likely to achieve these results.

Critical Appraisal of Evidence Based Literature

Writing a nursing essay requires more than just subject knowledge. It also requires the right research methodologies and skills to produce a high-quality paper. This is why it's no surprise that so many nursing students turn to professional writing services.

These services hire writers who specialize in nursing and understand the nuances of the language. They also offer a wide range of additional features, including a customized approach and 24/7 customer support.

Ethical and Policy Factors in Care Coordination

Nursing is a professional career that requires adherence to certain rules and regulations. This field is governed by a code of ethics, which guides nurses in carrying out their responsibilities. Nursing professionals are expected to provide patients with quality, accessible and affordable healthcare services. This entails coordination of healthcare services with other health care providers and POLI 330N Week 4 Assignment: Electoral College – Good or Bad? interprofessional communication.

The code of ethics also teaches nurses that they must treat each patient as an individual with their own unique needs and preferences. However, these responsibilities can be difficult to balance with other demands on their time. A growing number of healthcare professionals are participating in ethical reflection groups to discuss these difficulties.
